The facility was implemented under an agreement with the Peruvian Health Ministry in order to benefit the people living nearby the Malacas Power Station, which is managed by Enel Generación Piura.

The medical center is located in the Barrio Estibadores Park and provides free service to the community between 8:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m, while also allowing the patients to sign up for the Government-provided Healthcare Insurance Program (SIS, by its initials in Spanish). Furthermore, for many years the corporation has been running three annual medical campaigns under no charge, providing services such as general medicine, obstetrics, pediatrics, psychology, ophthalmology and free medication delivery. In 2018, these campaigns benefited 1,192 people.

“We are firmly committed to improving the quality of life of the communities living nearby our installations, in line with the Sustainable Development Goals adopted by Enel before the United Nations. We will carry on forward with these healthcare and educational initiatives in benefit of the people, fulfilling our role as good citizens within the communities that accommodate us”, pointed out Revuelta.
